Commissioners,

I applaud the City Council and Planning Department staff for crafting regulations that will effectively prohibit private detention centers and community detention facilities for unaccompanied minors citywide. I urge the City Planning Commission to unanimously support the effectuation of the ordinance related to CPC-2020-5811-CA which extends the Interim Control Ordinance prohibiting private detention centers and solidifies Los Angeles' commitments to the safety of residents regardless of residency or citizenship status.

As COVID-19 continues to ravage the health of our communities, regulations like the proposed ordinance works to actively combat the physical, emotional and health toll that incarceration proliferates. As the initial motion notes, people who are detained in the aforementioned facilities are often held for months, forced to live in psychologically and physically damaging conditions. The City Planning Commission must act urgently to approve the proposed ordinance given that the interim control ordinance would expire in February of 2021. Despite the election of a new federal administration, there will undoubtedly continue to be a profit-driven carceral state and Los Angeles legislators must act swiftly to ensure our communities do not become havens for private nor public detention of our neighbors.

All the best,
Ashley Locke

As the daughter of immigrants who were formerly undocumented I have seen terror in my community, the dangers that I.C.E brings when there is clearly no "pathway to citizenship", especially for those labeled as "unskilled". As commissioners you are well aware of the value each resident brings to Los Angeles, irrespective of residency status. By banning detention centers you are acting with the inclusive values of L.A.

Dear Commissioners,

Thank you to the L.A. City Council and Planning Department staff for crafting regulations that will effectively prohibit private detention centers and community detention facilities for unaccompanied minors citywide. Dear City Planning Commission,

I applaud the City Council and Planning Department for crafting regulations that will effectively prohibit private detention centers and community detention facilities for unaccompanied minors citywide. I urge the City Planning Commission to unanimously support the effectuation of the ordinance related to CPC-2020-5811-CA which extends the Interim Control Ordinance prohibiting private detention centers and solidifies Los Angeles' commitments to the safety of residents regardless of residency or citizenship status.

I have visited profit-driven detention centers in other states and I can say that I have witnessed what this level of isolation does to a person. These detention centers are designed to break the spirit of migrants, to the point that they will give up their claim for asylum in order to leave the horrors of the detention facility. Immigrant and refugee women are held at detention facilities where they are purposely subjected to isolation, psychological abuse, crowded conditions, and made to feel inferior. While migrants and refugees are forced to endure these conditions, the private companies gain tremendous profits as they collect tax payer dollars. We must say no to private detention facilities that enrich private companies while subjecting immigrants and refugees to the horrors of detention.

Say no to private detention facilities in Los Angeles.

Incarceration is traumatic. Our country has been incarcerating our neighbors at one of the highest rates in the world for decades. And it has not achieved the desired outcome of public safety. Instead it has exacerbated problems and traumatized communities. We must stop this practice and do something different. Let's support our neighbors by giving them the resources they need so they can thrive.

It is important to me that the City Planning Commission approves the proposed ordinance banning private detention centers and community detention facilities for unaccompanied minors citywide because our youth are our future, regardless of their status, and we should invest in their care in meaningful ways, and not in ways that will ultimately traumatize them. Private facilities inflict unimaginable harm on unaccompanied youth and Los Angeles should lead the way in banning them from our City.

When I was a minor I was arrested and detained for only a few hours. It was emotionally traumatic and scary, and I can only imagine how much worse it would be to be detained for weeks or months. Detention centers are not healthy for youth and they do not keep our communities safe.

These private detention centers abuse detained and incarcerated populations, exposing them to inhumane treatments and neglect the basic needs of people within their centers. These horrific conditions have been highlighted in the current COVID-19 pandemic. In private prisons and detention centers alike, the focus on neglect has been made clear through the lack of sanitary products and personal protective equipment. Moving away from contractual agreements with private prisons would be a direction toward protecting incarcerated populations and rejecting the dehumanization of placing a monetary value on bodies behind bars, especially when those bodies are hunted in predominately poor, Black and Brown communities.
