- 1. The Department of City Planning has been directed to study the future use of industrially zoned land in the City as a result of research conducted by the Mayor's Office of Economic Development (MOED). The Industrial Development Policy Initiative Report produced by MOED is available online at <http://cityplanning.lacity.org> under "New Features". This report identifies the issues impacting industrial development in the City of Los Angeles and presents key facts regarding LA's industrial economy.

This Special Meeting is an informational session for the City Planning Commission and the general public about trends, demands and other issues related to the use of industrially zoned land in the City of Los Angeles. A panel of experts will present information from the perspectives of industrial users, real estate developers, economists and housing advocates. The meeting is an important precursor to policy decisions that will address future land use designations in the City's industrial areas. For more information contact Conni Pallini-Tipton at Conni.Pallini-Tipton@lacity.org
