Reason:	Excellent and rare example of a 1930s restaurant building in Shadow Hills. The property was developed by August Furst, who had emigrated from Nuremburg, Germany in the 1920s. In 1935, Furst built an elaborate Moorish Revival-style residence on the hilltop above, with the intention of establishing an "Old World" restaurant at the bottom of the hill. The result was the Old Vienna Gardens restaurant, built in 1937, whose whimsical design was inspired by various European Revival styles, including English Tudor and Swiss Chalet. The surrounding grounds consisted of a variety of landscape features -- including hillside terracing, stairways, gardens, patios, and duck ponds -- some of which were constructed of local arroyo stone. More recently, the building was occupied by the Villa Terrazza restaurant; currently the building appears to be unoccupied.

Reason:	Excellent and unique example of a fantasy cottage in Tujunga, appears to be the work of noted designer Kenneth Worthen, Sr. This residence bares an unmistakable resemblance to a series of nine cottages located in the 200 and 300 blocks of Hollywood Way in Burbank, along with two examples in North Hollywood and eight in Studio City. These cottages were constructed in 1950 and 1951 and share a similar design, including their overall scale and massing, steeply pitched roof at the facade, and prominent chimney. The Burbank cottages were designed by Kenneth Worthen, Sr. Though not a licensed architect, Worthen was responsible for a number of more traditional Storybook and Period Revival residences throughout the Toluca Lake and Burbank areas. However, all of these cottages were constructed a few years after Worthen's death in 1947, suggesting that his designs may have been sold to one or more builders.
