

SLAUSON CORRIDOR Transit Neighborhood Plan

COMMUNITY WORKSHOPS

The City of Los Angeles Department of City Planning is seeking community input for a new planning effort, Slauson Corridor Transit Neighborhood Plan.

This planning effort will consider how land use, urban design, and zoning regulations can better promote walkable, vibrant neighborhoods and future employment opportunities around Metro's future bicycle and pedestrian path on Slauson (Rail to River Active Transportation Corridor).

At these workshops, you will have an opportunity to share your thoughts on:

- Industries that best support local employment opportunities
- How to best promote better mobility and access through building design
- What types of land uses you want to see along the corridor
